

- ❖ Try the process suggested in this presentation and see if it will help you achieve the success you want as a writer.
- ❖ Tailor it to fit your style and use it most of the time.
- ❖ Best wishes for rewarding writing experiences.

Let me hear from you if you have any questions or ideas.
msatterfield@tridentacademy.com

References

King, Diana H. Writing Skills A (2003), 1 (2004), 2(2004), and 3(2002).
Cambridge, MA : Educators Publishing Service. www.eps.com.

Lerner, Janet (1997). Learning Disabilities: Theories, Diagnosis, and Teaching Strategies (7th Edition). Boston, MA & New York, NY: Houghton Mifflin Company.

Mercer, Cecil D. (1992). Students with Learning Disabilities. New York, NY: Merrill, an imprint of Macmillan Publishing Company.

Satterfield, Mary Alice, Achieving fluency and depth through structure, Lowcountry Writing Project Summer Institute 2004, presentation and unpublished manuscript. msatterfield@tridentacademy.com.

Satterfield, Mary Alice, Strategies for enhancing written expression, Workshop Presentation: South Carolina Independent School Association Teachers Conference, November, 2001. msatterfield@tridentacademy.com.
